

EIDOS (European Inter-University Development Opportunities Study-Group) was founded in 1985 and brought together British, Dutch and German anthropologists actively engaged in the study of development. The broad purpose of EIDOS workshops has been to assess critically the dissemination and specialisation of anthropological and sociological knowledge in different European centres and to further the understanding of the ways in which that knowledge has directly influenced development.

Summary : Free a moral critique of development pdf download - recent critiques of international development practice affecting aid organizations such as oxfam action aid and the red cross have attacked the motives of those heading the machine of development suggesting that it is in reality just too politically complex for good ever to come of it but despite the genuine need for a critical appraisal of development work the anti-development backlash would appear to result in a moral dilemma should we try to help countries and people in need or refuse potentially corrupt or harmful involvement this book comments on how international development might once again become a visionary project with perspectives from workers in the development industry it draws lessons from actual projects to propose a theory of emergent ethics that local moral responses to specific projects must form the basis of a way forward
