Summary : Free the crosslinguistic study of language acquisition pdf download - in this final volume in the series the contributors attempt to expand the contexts in which child language has been examined crosslinguistically the chapters build on themes that have been touched on anticipated and promised in earlier volumes in the series the study of child language has been situated in the disciplines of psychology and linguistics and has been most responsive to dominant issues in those fields such as nativism and learning comprehension and production errors input and universals of morphology and syntax the context has primarily been that of the individual child interacting with a parent and deciphering the linguistic code the code has been generally treated in these volumes as a system of morphology and syntax with little attention to phonology and prosody attention has been paid occasionally to the facts that the child is acquiring language in a sociocultural setting and that language is used in contexts of semantic and pragmatic communication in addition there has been a degree of attention paid to the interactions between language and cognition in the process of development as for individual differences between children they have been discussed in those studies where they could not be avoided but such variation has rarely been the focus of systematic attention differences between individual languages have been of great interest but these differences have not often been placed in a framework of systematic typological variation and although languages and their grammars change over time the focus of attention on the individual child learner has generally led to neglect of explanatory principles that are best found on the level of linguistic diachrony rather than the level of innate ideas or patterns of learning and cognition in the individual child the chapter authors seek to explore these neglected contexts in more depth
